Course Announcement: Contemporary Base Issues (CBI)

165th Air Wing, Savannah, GA
8-9 January 2027

Brigadier General Nathan Kearns, The Air National Guard (ANG) Assistant to The Judge Advocate General, United States Air Force and Chief Master Sergeant Erin Bouchane, ANG Paralegal Career Field Manager and ANG Assistant to the Senior Enlisted Advisor to The Judge Advocate General, United States Air Force invites all ANG officers, NCOs, Airmen, and civilian staff to attend the upcoming CBI course scheduled for 8-9 January 2027, hosted by the 165 AW, Georgia Air National Guard.

Check-in begins at 0630. Instruction starts promptly at 0730 and concludes at approximately 1630 each day. This announcement supports justification for orders; local unit training (not school) funds should be used.

CBI prepares ANG officers and NCOs to work together to identify and respond to contemporary base issues. Topics include status, military discipline, ethics, standards, readiness, mental health, domestic operations, and leadership, taught through lectures and interactive scenarios. Although JAG-led, the course is designed for all career fields. The cadre brings strong energy and commitment to developing ANG leaders.

LOCATION: All instruction will take place at Combat Readiness Training Center, 1 Oelschig Drive, Garden City, GA 31408.

UOD: OCP, flight suit, or any combination of blues. Most students and cadre wear OCPs.

REGISTRATION: Register here. If the site does not load on a government network, use a personal device. If you need to cancel an existing registration, please return to the aforementioned link and click on the cancellation option. For registration issues, contact airng.cbi@gmail.com.

TRAVEL/LODGING: Attendees are responsible for their own travel and lodging arrangements through DTS. Travel days, if applicable, are 7 and 10 January 2027.

LANDING FEE: A voluntary landing fee will be collected to cover light snacks and beverages on Friday and Saturday. Payment is required for those partaking in refreshments. All meals are on your own.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: Note-taking/reference materials will be provided. No preliminary work is required. Monitor your email (including spam/junk folders) for any last-minute updates. Visit www.angcbi.com for the course syllabus, FAQs, and additional information.

On behalf of Brigadier General Kearns and the CBI cadre, we look forward to seeing you in Georgia.
